ABOUT THE AUTHOR

John Devol, born and raised in Ohio, received a B.S. in Music Education at Ohio University and an M.M. in Trumpet from Maryland University. Prior to settling in Manhattan, he performed with the U.S. Navy Band, the Smithsonian Brass Tower Musicians and Fred Waring and his Pennsylvanians. In New York Mr. Devol has played in jazz and dance bands, night clubs, ballet companies, Broadway shows, brass quintets and ensembles, films, commercials and recordings.

Besides performing, he has held various teaching positions-- ranging from brass instructor to band director-- at the Arlington Institute of Music, Wagner College, Xavier High School in Manhattan and the New York City Public Schools. Currently residing in New York City with his wife and two daughters, he is the leader of the Festival Brass Players of New York, specializing in the performance of church music at some of New York's larger churches, including the Riverside Church and St. George's Episcopal Church.

PREFACE

This bibliography can be of considerable value to church organists and choir directors, as well as to school music directors, brass teachers, serious brass students and professional musicians. In my own experience as student, teacher, music director and professional trumpeter, the opportunities to perform church music have been consistently rewarding. Excellent material is available, and the acoustics in most churches provide perhaps one of the best possible settings for the sound of the trumpet and other brass instruments. The idea has been to compile a list of all published music that includes at least one trumpet part and is appropriate for the church. This idea stemmed directly from my desire to stimulate and facilitate the use of brass instruments in churches today.

It should be understood, however, that this list includes only those works published through the year 1970, and that even some of these, though published, may be out of print and hence difficult to locate. For such hard-to-find works, public libraries and private church collections are probably the best places to begin -- and hopefully end -- your search.

In addition let me concede that it would be presumptuous of me or anyone else to make an arbitrary judgment as to what is church music and what is not. Therefore, the works listed here are those considered suitable for church use by the most conservative standards, not by the considerably broader standards that have become prevalent in recent years. A list such as this one would be impossible to compile using more liberal standards, since it could include almost anything.

In almost every congregation, one or more brass instrumentalists will be found who can assist in the music of the worship service. Quite commonly, music directors have incorporated brass instruments on the more festive days of the church year. Less frequently, other worship services have been enhanced by the use of brass for preludes, postludes and accompanying anthems and hymns. Too often, music directors have a desired composition but not the proper arrangement for the available performers, or are unaware of some written brass music that is appropriate for a specific occasion or use.

This book is arranged very conveniently to help solve such problems. Each section within the Table of Contents is grouped according to a specific combination of instruments and/or voices. For example, if the director has three trumpeters available for a particular service, he can quickly find suitable literature for this combination either with voices, keyboard (piano or organ) or for three trumpets alone. The publisher's name appears in the listing, and his complete address in Appendix II. Appendix I charts the number of works for each occasion according to instrumentation. It is meant as an aid in selecting a particular instrumentation for a particular occasion. For example, in examining Appendix I, one can readily see that for Easter there are twenty-six choral arrangements with parts for three trumpets, as opposed to only eleven for two trumpets.

There are probably some works that have been overlooked in the preparation of this bibliography, although more than 100 publishers were consulted and 89 included. For the sake of practicality, the very large orchestral-choral works (such as the masses, oratorios and requiems of Bach, Handel, Mozart and others) have not been included. However, many of the masters' smaller works have been transcribed and arranged for various combinations of brass and these have been included in the instrumental section.

I would like to extend my deepest gratitude to the publishers who cooperated in furnishing me with listed material and, in many cases, sample scores. Special thanks go to Robert A. Camburn, Frederick Swann, Charles Henderson, Frank Smith, Stuart Gardner, Gordon Paulsen and Harold Wegbreit for their suggestions and criticisms.

INTRODUCTION

The following explanations of column heads, abbreviations and symbols used in this bibliography are essential to its fullest utilization. It is suggested that the reader familiarize himself briefly with this information before proceeding to the bibliography itself.

Title

The Brass with Chorus section is listed in alphabetical order by title, placing emphasis on the text of the vocal score. The instrumental sections have been listed in alphabetical order by composer.

Composer-Arranger

The last names are used, with composer first. However, when the composer is not known, or when several appear in a collection, only the arranger is listed.

Publisher

The name of the publisher has been reduced to one or two key words: for complete names and addresses, please refer to Appendix II. In a few instances the publisher could not be ascertained, but I have included these works nonetheless, simply to document the fact that they do exist. Instrumental compositions can be ordered by mail from Robert King, Easton, Mass. 00725. They have what is probably the largest stock of brass music in the world and may be able to locate even those for which you cannot furnish the publisher's name. Likewise, Keynote Music Service, 833 South Olive Street, Los Angeles, Cal. 90014, may help you locate any of this material.

Voicing-Instrumentation

If not stated in the heading of the section, specific instrumentations and/or vocal parts are indicated in this column. All the entries under Brass with Chorus are for soprano, alto, tenor and bass (SATB) unless otherwise stated. A plus sign in front of TTBB (+TTBB) indicates another arrangement in addition to the SATB. If it is known that the choral arrangement has a prominent solo part, it is indicated. For example, T solo. If the brass parts and/or the whole composition are available for rental it is stated in this column. Other abbreviations used are as follows:

b- bass (e.g. b trb)
bar- baritone horn bsn- bassoon
ch- choir (chorus)
cl- clarinet cong- congregation
cont- continuo cym- cymbals dbl- double sr- senior str- string tamb- tambourine tba- tuba trb- trombone trpt- trumpet tymp- tympani

u- unison
/-or (e.g. p/org)

Also, if it is known that the text is in a foreign language, it is indicated here.

Utility

Specific purposes or occasions for which the music may be performed are suggested. Those compositions placed in the "general" category (G) are those that could be performed on any day of the church year. This includes the choral selections that have texts of general worship and praise and all the pure instrumental compositions that have no programed intent. If the duration of the work is known, it is indicated. A key to abbreviations in this column follows:

TRUMPET WARM UPS by Harold Branch — complete Set 12.50

Book I - All Major Keys. Over a hundred exercises, each with directions and hints covering all major keys. A new approach 3.50

Book II - All Minor Keys. This book follows the patterns in Book I. The unique feature here is the use of Melodic and Harmonic minor scales in warming up 4.00

Book III - All diatonic chords and inversions. This book features the much neglected chords and inversions which trumpet players are seldom subjected to. The "warm up" form in books I, II remains intact 4.00

Book IV - All chromatic scales and chords. Every interval is carefully covered. All chords are approached with a chromatic concept. Again still retaining the "warm up" features 3.50

EMBOUCHURE SELF ANALYSIS AND THE STEVENS-COSTELLO TRIPLE C EMBOUCHURE TECHNIQUE by Roy Stevens

Here is the only book in the world that will solve all embouchure problems. Brass players (beginners and advanced) brass teachers and instrumental teachers in the schools have been waiting and hoping for a book like this. Readers of this book will be able to:

1. Analyze and correct all embouchure problems. (This book scientifically analyzes the correct use of every part of the body necessary to build the ideal embouchure).
2. Develop a range up to phenomenal triple C. (Scientific analysis and exercises are provided).
3. Build endurance, breathing and power necessary to become a first rate "lead" player. (Scientific analysis and exercises are provided for this purpose). 35.00
